KETCHEL MAKES GOOD SHOWING IN TRAINING WORK

Champion Has His Own Ideas of How to Prepare for a Battle-Is Anxious to Fight Jack Johnson

S TANLEY KETCHEL is as classy looking a fighting man as looked upon in many a day. After watching his training up at Woodlawn Inn I can easily understand how he knocks other firstraters out in a punch or two.

Ketchel began work yesterday for the fight with O'Brien. Curiously nough others have overlooked the event, and I found myself the only newspaper man on the ground. A few local sports had dropped in to ee Ketchel, White and Keyes box. When I arrived Ketchel, in working togs, was fixing a punching bag.

He stopped for a moment, shook hands, and then went back to the knot tying. "I must have it short," said Ketch. "The shorter the faster, and working and now his right. He gets in close and punches hard with the right. His feet are shifting in that smooth Fitzsimmons way. As the right lands the left whips over like a flash to the same mark. Or it is the left and then the right. Ketchel leans over and sends hooks and uppercuts to the body. And shoulder and body swing in with every blow. I didn't see Ketchel duck or block during the sparring bout. "I never do," sting out of them by moving my head

When the boxing was finished Manager Billy Britt suggested the skipping rope. Ketchel scowled. "No. I never use that. I don't do any of those footwork stunts. I don't want to know how to run around. If a fellow knows how to run away hell do it in a finit, and if he doesn't know how he'll stay close and fight like the devil."

Ketch is a logical young gentleman. After the rubdown the champion slipped on a pair of Indian mocoasins end a long cloak. I asked him how he got the fight with Joe Thomas that made him famous.

Svanberg devices the beat them handsomely in the light with Joe Thomas that made him famous.

Svanberg was a side dish and a real relish. He ran ten miles, a relay race, with an Italian and a Weishman for thailers. He beat them handsomely in objects on their feet or a needs. una," said Ketchel. "After a while I ent down to Nevada and had a fight here. The manager of a club in Sacra-tento, Cal., saw me and offered me a latch. The fellow I fought in Sacra-

Ketchel surely showed punching power. He ripped in a few blows hardenough to stagger Muller, then eased him a long a little. Afterward he explained that he didn't like to take advantage of his own nower and batter his sperring partner up. "But when I get into the rink I like it much better," he added, "because I can hit as hard as I please."
